Wednesday 18th September
Minster presents:

3CX Use VOIP to stay connected to the office - wherever you are

Minster Micro are excited to announce our new product launch - 3CX. Our new telephone system will improve your employee productivity, encourage mobility and telework as well as save your company money.

VOIP is now available for the SME marketplace giving the versatility of a corporate product at a fraction of the cost.

Using 3CX will allow your communications to evolve with your company – calls to and from office-based handsets can be made from anywhere. Turn your mobile into your office - based handset, when not at your desk via an iPhone or Android smartphone – whilst voicemail and faxes can be received via email.

This will give the benefit of being able to break free from the office without worrying about missing crucial calls. It will also give other employees an idea of where a specific colleague is – helping to avoid making and transferring unnecessary calls.

3CX also gives you the opportunity to connect your national and global offices and re-direct local customer services numbers via the internet – meaning less cost. It also enables you to set-up inter-office calls as FREE internal calls and there is no extra cost for voicemail, auto attendants and queues.

If you would like more information, please call us and pre-book your place (as spaces are limited!) at our event on 18th

September 2013. Alternatively, if you can't wait to see 3CX in action – book a private seminar at Minster free of charge.

"3CX allows medium-sized businesses to work on a corporate scale. Fantastic!"
